I want both of you...

Participative or democratic style

Let's work together to solve this. . .

Laissez-faire or free rein style

You two take care of the problem while I go. . .

AUTOCRATIC OR AUTHORITARIAN STYLE

- Under the autocratic leadership style, all decision-making powers are centralized in the leader, as with dictators.
- Leaders do not entertain any suggestions or initiatives from subordinates.

- The autocratic management has been successful as it provides strong motivation to the manager. It permits quick decision-making, as only one person decides for the whole group and keeps each decision to him/herself until he/she feels it needs to be shared with the rest of the group.

PARTICIPATIVE OR DEMOCRATIC STYLE

- The democratic leadership style consists of the leader sharing the decision-making abilities with group members by promoting the interests of the group members and by practicing social equality.
- However, the leader maintains the final decision making authority. Using this style is not a sign of weakness, rather it is a sign of strength that your employees will respect.

LAISSEZ-FAIRE OR FREE REIN STYLE

- A person may be in a leadership position without providing leadership, leaving the group to fend for itself. Subordinates are given a free hand in deciding their own policies and methods.
- However, the leader is still responsible for the decisions that are made.

4. CONTROLLING

- ④ The process of monitoring activities to ensure that they are being accomplished as planned and correcting any significant deviations
- ④ All managers should be involved in the control function even if their units are performing as planned

- Managers cannot really know whether their units are performing properly until they have evaluated what activities have been done and have compared the actual performance with the desired standard
 - An effective control system ensures that activities are completed in ways that lead to the attainment of the organization's goals

Measuring Actual
Performance

Taking Managerial
Action

Comparing Actual
Performance
Against Standard

Measuring...

- To determine what actual performance, managers must acquire information.
- Four common sources of information frequently used by managers to measure actual performance are personal observation, statistical reports, oral reports, written reports

Comparing...

- The comparing determine the degree of variation between actual performance and the standard
- Some variation in performance can be expected in all activities

Taking...

- Managers can choose among three possible courses of action
 - They can do nothing
 - They can correct the actual performance-corrective action
 - They can revise the standards
